HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When it is Free of Dandruff It Grows Luxuriantly.

Half preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and so for the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Neuch's Remedy—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It always itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send fee in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Wakelin's Pharmacy, special agents.

As a rule popular subscriptions are in the unpopular class.—*Chicago News.BETTER THAN A PLASTER.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on the affected part is better than a plaster for a lame back and for pains in the side or chest. Pain Balm has no superior as a stimulant for the relief of deep-seated, muscular and rheumatic pains. For sale by all druggists.

in London and most foreign capitals, that he can in New York or Chicago. Many who can not sleep in the United States are less troubled with insomnia abroad. When cable cars, with gongs, and crowds, railways overhead, packed streets, automobiles, telephones, telegrams, messenger boys, and the general machinery of haste are added, nervous tension becomes extreme. Sometimes it takes the form of a passion for late hours, and might be called Somniphobia. The somniphobia is so keyed up that he shanks from the relaxation of sleep, or any other quietness. The love of excitement is often an exaggeration of the love of drink. "He not hurried away by excitement," says Epictetus, "but by a senseless wait for a little. Let me see what you are and what you represent." Many of our occupations would hardly stand the test of Epictetus. Emerson made the same point as Mr. Root, when he said that nature's command is, "Why so hot, little man?" As women are more responsible, just now, than men, for increasing nervousness, one of our problems is to make natural activities attractive to them—not work enough to exhaust them, but enough to keep them from being as restless as a fly under an exhausted receiver. Pleasure, diversion, are never sufficient to form a life. Responsibility is necessary to freedom. Thackeray, laughing at the strivings of Werther, had his heroine, at the end of the poem, go on cutting bread and butter. Candide, after examining all possible worlds, decided that the real thing was to cultivate a garden.—Collier's Weekly.

RAISED FROM THE DEAD.

R. H. Foster, 218 S. 2nd St., Salt Lake City, writes: "I have been bothered with dyspepsia or indigestion for 21 years; tried many doctors without relief; recently I got a bottle of Herbine. One bottle cured me, I am now tapering off on the second. I have recommended it to my friends; it is curing them, too." See at Elvey & Hulet's.

It's the little colds that grow into big ones; the big colds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little colds. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

NERVOUS PROSPERITY.

Nervous prosperity is a disease. Nearly being prosperous makes many persons nervous. Women, having duties which, if not fewer, are less compulsory, than those of men, are peculiarly subject to this complaint. Their physical strength is less; their nervous systems are more complicated. Secretary Root regrets the decrease of country life on the ground that cities make a nervous race, different from the cool old stock which has been the basis of our civilization. Mr. Root thinks that nervousness to the soil is a necessary condition of strong nerves. The American climate, in the northern states, is exulting. A person can drink more coffee or alcohol, without feeling stimulated,

ORIGINAL HORSE Lived in New Mexico and Was Not Larger Than a Fox.

The earliest recognized ancestor of the horse family is the eomphus, found in the Wasatch beds of Wyoming and New Mexico. He was about the size of a small fox, with four complete toes on the fore foot and three on the hind foot. He was fitted for swamps and had simple, monkey-like teeth, not at all like the complicated grinders of the horse of the present day. There is reason to believe that the still more remote ancestors of this and all other mammals had five toes on each foot, as in the forefoot of the earliest known stage is found a split-bone or small rudiment representing a missing digit or thumb. The evolution of the horse, adapting it to live on the dry plains, apparently went on with the evolution of the plains themselves. At the commencement of the age of mammals the western part of North America was not high above the sea level. This low elevation would favor the growth of dense forests, to which condition of life the animals of the beginning of the mammalian period must have adapted themselves. During the tertiary period the western part of the continent was steadily rising above the ocean level and becoming colder and drier. This change restricted and thinned the forests and brought about open grassy plains. The ancient forest animals were forced either to retreat or disappear with the forests or to adapt themselves to the new order of existence, which the ancestors of the horse did. The side toes disappeared and the legs lengthened, the animals becoming speedy. The teeth became adapted to the mastication of hard and dry food, whereas formerly they were used only for soft grasses and plants.

The small, short-eared and shaggy-haired wild horse of Europe was contemporary with primitive man. The latest proof of this is the series of animal drawings and etchings recently found cut deep in the rock sides of the Combarelles cave in France. Hitherto the small, big-headed horse found on bone and flint in other caves was supposed to be purely a food animal and never used to carry men, but in the Combarelles drawing there is depicted another horse with small head, finer nose and delicate form. What is more important is the fact that some are shown with halter or cord attached to the head, which goes far to prove that the cave men had domesticated and used the horse as a beast of burden, as well as for food. This justifies the conclusion that the men who were contemporary with the mammoth rode horses and may have employed them in hunting with their weapons of stone and bone the great hairy beast, possibly 2,000,000 years ago.—Chicago News.
